COVID-19 Omicron Variant Confirmed in Mississippi

SEA COAST ECHO

The Mississippi State Department of Health (MSDH) on Monday reported the first case of the COVID-19 Omicron variant in the state. The case is in a fully vaccinated individual who recently traveled to New York. The patient was not hospitalized.

Mississippi joins 16 other states (California, Colorado, Connecticut, Georgia, Hawaii, Louisiana, Maryland, Massachusetts, Missouri, Minnesota, Nebraska, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Utah, and Washington) in the U.S. that have reported cases of Omicron.

"We were prepared for the appearance of this variant in Mississippi, and we need to remember that Delta is still a very active variant of COVID-19 currently in the state, as well," said MSDH State Health Officer Dr. Thomas Dobbs.

Arts community mourns one of its own

BY GWEN IMPSON
CONTRIBUTING WRITER

Kathleen (Kathe) Gayle Calhoun passed away on September 25 at Dunbar Village in Bay St. Louis. She was a vibrant 87 years of age, captivating all who knew her. She had a certain “joie de vivre” that was contagious.

Kathy was born in Alexandria LA and traveled the world during her lifetime. Her fondest childhood memories were those spent with her family on the Gulf Coast where her family maintained a home. Later, her children enjoyed fishing, crabbing, gigging for flounder and playing on the beach. So it was no surprise that she decided to make Bay St. Louis her home.

At the age of six, Kathe began expressing herself through art as if born to it. Throughout the years of traveling and raising a family, she continued to grow as an artist: taking classes, winning awards for her art work, and eventually exhibiting and selling her work as a professional artist.

Although most collectors prize Kathe’s watercolor paintings, she was actually a multi talented artist working in other mediums such as oil, pastel, acrylic, gouache, as well as silk painting, collage and jewelry. Kathe reveled in learning new techniques and described herself as a lifelong learner.

She studied at the New Orleans Academy of Art and with many nationally known instructors over the years. She then shared her knowledge as an art teacher. Kathe was one of the artists chosen to be a part of Bay Arts, a program instituted by the City of Bay Louis to bring students to the Bay to study a variety of art forms.

Kathe was also a founding member of The Arts Hancock County where she remained active since it’s inception in 2003. She participated in Arts Alive and, after Katrina, she was one of the artists who participated in traveling art exhibits including the William Jefferson Clinton Library in Little Rock as well as exhibits in Washington D.C., and in Rome, GA.

Over the years, Kathe exhibited her work in numerous group shows and had a one person show at the Depot. She had a number of individuals who collected her art.

Her work has been published in Walking on Water, Hearts for Art, Gulf Coast Memory Scrapbook, and others.

One of Kathe’s watercolors was reproduced and is aptly titled “I wasn’t born in Mississippi but I got here as soon as I could.”

On learning that The Arts would finally have a home thanks to Mamie Hillery, she was overjoyed. The new Arts Center, located at 405 Blaize Avenue, will provide so many opportunities for the community that Kathe loved so well.

Kathe generously bequeathed the entire contents of her studio to The Arts. She wanted her supplies, art materials and reference materials to be used in teaching classes in the new Arts Center.

Kathe is survived by her two sons, Steven Rivière and M.Haven Rivière, and their families and by numerous friends many of who became her extended family.

A Celebration of Life will be held sometime in the future. In Kathe’s honor, donations may be made to The Arts in her name. At present, a donor is matching any funds donated to The Arts capital campaign. The web site is hancock-arts.org.

My little ‘monster’

Although at times I still wish my nephew was a teeny tiny baby, I am in awe of the intelligent person he is growing up to be.

We’ve also passed that point where I could pick him up and hold him in my arms anymore. But, he does still like to sit in your lap and cuddle.

Now, he will sometimes call me on the phone after school.

He loves to talk about Mario Kart racing and we compare which new characters we received. Yes, he got me once again addicted to playing games like Mario Kart on my phone. It didn’t take much, though. I’ve always enjoyed playing video games, just don’t make the time for it anymore.

But it’s something we have in common and can discuss. It’s some of the most adorable conversations I’ve ever had. He always ends the conversation with a hurried, “Love you, bye!”

Something else we also have in common lately is writing.

He’s in the second grade at a Texas school and already learning how to write short stories and letters, of which I apparently need to learn the difference.

A few weeks ago, my sister sent me a picture of one his latest writings. I told her to tell him that it was a good story. He told her to tell me that “It’s not a story, it’s a letter.” Yes, I apologized for my error.

Last week, she sent me one of his stories titled “My Monster.” Well, we talked about it on the phone. I told him he should write something for the newspaper.

He thought about it for a second and said “No, you can just tell them about it.”

So, here we are.

The story goes “One night when I was walking in the hall and in the living room, there was a big monster watching T.V. I ran to get it and it was eating my food. I got mad and I started to kick it. It tickled me and I ran in my room and locked the door. It ran up to hug me and he said, ‘My name is Bowser.’ At that moment, I caught him in a big jar. He said, ‘Get me out!’ The End.”

If you don’t know, Bowser is a character from the Super Mario series of games.

So, given his recent love of all things Super Mario, I’m not surprised he would pick one of the characters to write about.

I don’t remember if I learned to write stories

Hancock History: The Ladner Family of Bayou Lacroix

HANCOCK HISTORY

BY James Keating M.D.

The Ladners are a well-known family in the history of Hancock County. This segment of the Ladner clan moved to Bayou LaCroix from Harrison County after 1890. Like their Zengerling neighbors, Alcide Theophilus Ladner (1873-1958) and Margaret Alphas “Alfray” Johnson Ladner (1876-1945) were also Catholic. Having married in 1896, the couple moved to Bayou LaCroix area sometime in the 1890’s. They had eight children and owned a fifty acre farm.

The second generation of Ladners included August Ladner (1907-1980) and Myrtle Elector Ladner (1915-1995). This Catholic family reared seven children. Their farm of approximately fifty acres was located next to their parents’ farm just across Bayou LaCroix from the center of town. August worked for the local sawmill earning supplemental income. Myrtle worked for the local school system.

Flora Page (1911-1928) was actually the first wife of August Ladner. She died in a boating accident. The tragedy occurred on a ferry crossing the Rigolets Pass which is a channel between Lake Ponchartrain and Lake Borgne. Flora, her sister, and August were in a car on the ferry when the vessel hit a shallow shoal, and the impact caused their car to fall in the water. August was able to rescue Flora’s sister, but Flora drowned. Flora is buried in the Bayou LaCroix Cemetery near the tomb of August and Myrtle Ladner.

A third generation of Ladners included James Arland “Jim” Ladner (1936-2020) and Barbara Bennett (1939-1985). They built a house in Bayou LaCroix in 1962, but had to move to Ansley in 1964 because of the NASA Buffer Zone. Jim was originally in the plumbing business with his brother-in-law, Bill Bourgeois. Jim later owned and operated Ladner’s Friendly Inn which was a very successful bar, gas station, and store on Lower Bay Road. Jim developed a popular baseball field across the road from his tavern and fostered baseball tournaments every summer between leagues or teams in the region. Jim also supplemented his income working at the Halter Marine Company in Port Bienville and working for the Park Commission.

Jim’s sister, Myrna Ladner Bourgeois (b. 1930), married William Bourgeois, Jr. (b.1934). William’s family was local also and his great-grandmother was a member of the local Choctaw Indian tribe from the Favre family. Myrna and Bill own land in Bayou LaCroix where three generations of Ladners have worked their farms. On their land they harvested the timber for pulpwood. Previously, they raised cows and grew corn and watermelons. Myrna served as Superintendent of Education in Hancock County at one time. She was responsible for allocation of some of the original NASA compensation money paid to Hancock County being directed to education. Presently, he helps to maintain the

Mississippi Lost a Giant with Mosby

Guest Column

By James Cummins

In early October of this year, I was traveling on the Henry S. Mosby Highway in Loudon County, Virginia, for a memorial service for the late conservationist, Maggie Bryant. Maggie owned Tara Wildlife, which is not too far south of Rolling Fork. During the Civil War, Henry Mosby was known as the “Gray Ghost” and he commanded a battalion in the 1st Virginia Cavalry known as Mosby’s Raiders. He was later the campaign manager in Virginia for President Ulysses S. Grant. One of Henry Mosby’s great strengths was truth and honesty. Traveling on this stretch of highway reminded of my old friend, Ray Mosby, back home in Rolling Fork, Mississippi, and how much they had a lot in common.

Almost one month later, on November 9, Mississippi lost a literary giant when Ray died of a short illness while in the hospital in Jackson. A graduate of Ole Miss with a degree in English, Ray began his career in journalism in the early 1980s at the Clarksdale Press Register. It spanned over 40 years.

Ray was one of Mississippi’s greatest newspapermen. After working at the Clarksdale Press Register, he purchased the Deer Creek Pilot, which has been in existence for 144 years. It serves as both a voice to and for the people of Sharkey and Issaquena counties, two of the poorest counties in the state. The great newspaperman Hal DeCell was the former editor, publisher, and owner of the Pilot, for 39 years to be exact. DeCell had taken on Governor Ross Barnett and the Citizen’s Council while he ran the paper. Ray was also the publisher and editor of the paper. He did that for 28 years except he also said he was the “chief cook and bottle washer.”

What set Ray apart from others was his unique gift of utilizing words to express his opinion. He was one of Mississippi’s strongest opinion writers. So much so, that every year when the Mississippi Press Association held its banquet to recognize the work of the state’s journalists, it seemed Ray was getting a first-place award. Three times he won the coveted J. Oliver Emmerich Award for Editorial Excellence, the highest honor of the Mississippi Press Association. Like the Gray

Ghost, Ray was a huge believer in truth and honesty, even when it went against his friends and advertisers, which took courage in a small town. He was also a passionate supporter of the first amendment and our right to free speech. These are traits that a lot in the media have lost, especially at the national level.

Ray Mosby was the best editorial and opinion writer in Mississippi. He was highly respected and trusted. Mississippi and the South Delta are better off because of Ray. I don’t have all the answers but I do know that the more people in the world with the traits of Ray Mosby, the better off we will be.

James L. Cummins is executive director of Wildlife Mississippi, a non-profit, conservation organization founded to conserve, restore, and enhance fish, wildlife, and plant resources throughout Mississippi. Their website is www.wildlifemiss.org.

like this when I was in the second grade.

I’m so glad he is learning how to write like this. He has always loved using his imagination to create, but he is also fully grounded in reality.

One time when he was about two or three years old, he was playing with a toy lawnmower. I asked him if he had a good time mowing the grass.

He then informed me that it “wasn’t a real lawnmower, it was just a toy.”

Yes, he has been telling me and others like it is since way back.

My nephew is always so proud of his grades. Every week, almost, we get pictures of his school work. He makes straight A’s almost every report card, which is causing my dad’s wallet some pain. But, even if he didn’t make straight A’s, I would still be proud of him for doing his best.

Besides, since I’ve been an adult, no one has inquired as to how many times I got straight A’s in school.

I feel that writing and reading comprehension are two of the most important things people can learn. And it appears that my nephew is learning that at school and also applying that to real life.

Sometimes, he Facetimes me and my parents. He has a table set up with crayons and paper. He then explains what he will be drawing. It is usually a race course and it is so much fun listening to him go over each and every little detail.

I could see him being a teacher one day. He has the “teacher voice” down pat.

Every so often, we say “one of his lines” like “welcome back” and we get slightly chastised for it. I also sometimes get in trouble for giggling at his cuteness. What can I say? I do have a belligerent personality at times.

I could also see him becoming a writer someday.

Maybe write his own children’s books. His newest passion is reading the “Big Nate” series of books. They are written in comic form. He even wakes up early to read and sometimes turns on his lamp after bedtime to read.

It’s adorable and my heart always feels like it will burst when I hear about it.

I used to always close my bedroom door and read books. It’s hard to read at night when one wears glasses. I would wake up several times to find that my glasses were somewhere tangled in my bedsheets or on the floor because I fell asleep reading.

But, no matter what career path he decides to follow, I know that I will be supportive of his decision. I also know that he is of the mindset to succeed at whatever he does.

No one has to push him to go to school and learn. In fact, before he went to school, he was always so observant and eager to learn how to do things on his own.

I look forward to seeing what his future holds, but for now, I’m enjoying watching him grow and learn, hearing that little voice on the phone chattering excitedly away, and just living for those “love you, byes!”

And maybe one day, I can convince him to write something for print. And we always welcome submissions from members of our community, whether it be in the form of a letter to the editor or a personal/guest column. Around Thanksgiving, Bay native La-China wrote about her journey with leukemia. You can find it on our website, www.seacoastecho.com, under the editorials tab.

I find that writing can be therapeutic, which does not include writing about municipal meetings and whatnot.

Like Shrek said, “better out than in, I say.” Sharing our triumphs, tragedies, and battles is how we learn that we are not alone in this world and that oftentimes, people are facing the same things and worrying about how to deal with it.

SCAM alert: Callers falsely pitch scams regarding warrants, lawsuits, jury duty

Bayou LaCroix Cemetery. Citizens are still buried there, but by permission only if they have direct ancestors from the original town. Burial is free if approved. Myrna provided some of the stories for this article.

James “Jimmie” Ladner, Jr., represents the fourth generation of the Ladner clan described in this narrative. He was born in 1962 in Fort Chaffee, Arkansas, where his father, Jim, was stationed during the Cuban Missile Crisis. Jim was in the Army National Guard at that time. Jimmie, Jr., only lived in Bayou LaCroix for two years as an infant before his family was forced to move from the NASA Buffer Zone. He grew up in Ansley. Jimmie graduated from Hancock North Central High School in the Kiln. He attended Pearl River Junior College in Poplarville, Mississippi, studying industrial technology. After college Jimmie found work as a draftsman at Lockheed Marietta, at Michoud in the greater New Orleans area. Later, he worked in the industrial park at Port Bienville at Suland Services and Calgon Carbon. In 1999 Jimmie was elected Hancock County Assessor and Tax Collector. He married Cheryl Calhoun (b. 1963) from Waveland, who is an insurance agent. They have two daughters, Heather and Hillary.

Jimmie believes that one of his most significant achievements in his twenty years of service has been his contribution, with the other Hancock County officials, in promoting the remarkable economic recovery of Hancock County following Hurricane Katrina. The second major achievement of his office has been installing the GIS (Global Information System) to the Assessor’s office and training/educating his staff in its usage. The mapping of the county properties is no longer done by hand but computerized with satellite GPS (Global Positional System) type images. Hancock was the first Mississippi County to generate maps with land values. This promotes transparency for its citizens with fair assessments without political favoritism. Ad valorem taxes are supposed to be based on equity.

In conclusion, Bayou LaCroix was a prosperous small village that grew over a span of 130 years before the NASA Buffer Zone required its termination. Multigenerational, close-knit families such as the Zengerlings and Ladners worked together to build a small, but robust, economy on a navigable waterway-Bayou LaCroix. As described in a preceding column, the first generation of Zengerlings, John and Matthew, encouraged an attitude of inclusion, thereby making the local Choctaw Indians feel welcome as neighbors. All of the inhabitants of this town worshiped together in the local Catholic Church, and all of the children attended the local Dillville School. Even though it no longer exists, the history of this town serves as a model to demonstrate how there can be peaceful, successful assimilation of diverse cultures and immigrants from different far away lands such as Germany.

Today, all that is left of this village is its lovely, old, well-managed cemetery on the old Bayou LaCroix Road. The names on the various tombstones record the many inhabitants who lived in this special place who are still remembered by their descendants as depicted in these stories embedded in the precious history of Hancock County.

In our next column, we will feature the history of the town of Santa Rosa that was once the home of the Kellar and Frierson families.

MARY ELAINE LUNDIN CAPLINGER

Amazing mother, entrepreneur, market researcher, friend, teacher, and mentor. Mary Elaine Lundin Caplinger (Mick-ey) joined the Lord in heaven on November 19, 2021. She was a young 78. Born in New Orleans to Elaine Sill Lundin and Edward Justin Lundin, Sr. she learned the values of her lifetime: love and defender of family, devotion to her Catholic faith, and mentor to so many lucky souls. After moving to Baton Rouge, Mickey studied at St. Joseph’s Academy and was a natural leader, serving as a class officer each year and attended Louisiana Girls State. Mickey attended Louisiana State University. She left LSU to support her family by teaching at St. Aloysius School. Putting others first was a priority throughout her life.

Mickey married Charles A. Caplinger III and moved to New Orleans where she raised their family, started numerous companies, and advised some of the most prominent firms in New Orleans. Mickey loved the people and culture of New Orleans and was very active in politics. Although few politicians lived up to her expectations, she was instrumental in getting them elected with effective marketing campaigns, including several governorships. Mickey served as an officer of the Alliance for Good Government, Regular Democratic Organization, Louisiana Dairy Board, Closer Walk Ministries with her dearest priest, Father Jeff Bayhi, and her favorite, the New Orleans Jazz and Heritage Foundation Board. At a time when few ladies were in the corporate suite, Mickey advised many of our city’s executives and leaders. Her marketing career helped save Dixie Beer (the first time), developed the famous Pop-eye’s biscuit (that saved them), advised Smoothie King on franchising and expansion (grew them), and improved Tidewater’s employee relationships (kept them from sinking).

Although it has been years since she caught beads and doubloons or danced at Jazz Fest, Mickey loved the New Orleans festivities that offered the opportunity to meet new people and entertain. Her home was rarely locked and always available to guests and family eager to experience the excitement of New Orleans. Later in life, she built a house in Waveland, Mississippi, where she had spent most of her younger weekends with her parents, brothers, and sisters. Again, her door was never locked, there was always a meal for a guest, and she loved entertaining friends and family on the coast.

Egos, attitudes, and pretentiousness bored her. In her world, the first was last and the last was first. At Thanksgiving, you could have sat next to a bishop, homeless person, or perhaps a Russian defector; all were welcome at her table. Her children bequeathed her the title “friend of the friendless”, but she always taught by example by feeding those needy, bonding the charged, and mentoring the helpless. She never met a stranger and developed deep relationships with countless people. If she could help you, her last dollar was yours. Her nieces, nephews, and cousins were as close to her as her own children, but her grandchildren were most special. Mickey was happy to reschedule her calendar to attend a grandchild’s play, birthday party, or to just sit on a fishing pier with her grands; they were the twinkle in her eye. Mickey’s stories always kept us engaged, and she managed to conceal a life lesson in each and every one of them. To instill empathy and compassion, she often lamented “there are a million stories in the naked city.” She could convince you of the right path without you realizing you were being convinced. We will never know how many lives have been touched by Mickey, suffice to say that this world is a much better place for her living.

Taught by their parents that blood was blood, she shared a lifelong, resolute bond with all of her siblings, however Mickey was especially grateful for the absolute unwavering care given by her two dear sisters during her last years.

Mickey is survived by her three children and their spouses – Charlie and wife Rebel, Molly and husband Don Papania, and Ryan; five grandchildren – Addie, Connor, and Claire Caplinger, and Colin and Patrick Papania; her two devoted sisters – Mary Margaret (Babet) Waldrep and husband Rusty, Mary Althea (Honey) Bartholomew and husband Joe, five loving brothers – Ed Lundin, Jr. and wife Mady, Tommy Lundin and wife Darlene, Ricky Lundin and wife Jill, Walter Lundin and wife Jane, and Brien Lundin and wife Fran; and dozens of cousins, nephews, and nieces that cherished their relationship with Mickey.

Mickey had no interest in dragging her family and friends to a grave, so a memorial Mass will be held at Our Lady of the Lake Catholic Church in Mandeville at 10am on December 18, 2021, followed by a party at 226 Esquinance Dr. in Mandeville to celebrate how blessed we are to have had her for so many years. In lieu of flowers, please hug your family members and consider a donation to Closer Walk Catholic Communications or St. Jude Research Hospital.

ELLEN JANE MCREE

Ellen Jane McRee, 70 of Waveland, passed away Thursday at her home, with her loving husband at her side. She was born July 23, 1951 in New Orleans, one of ten children and the only daughter to Edward and Betty Jane (Comiskey) Sens. Ellen grew up in New Orleans, attending and graduating from Sacred Heart of Jesus Catholic School. She took a couple of college course and decided to get married early. They lived in the Crescent City, with Ellen working for and managing a doctor’s office for a few years, later doing the same for a lawyer before finishing her career managing a finance office. After her first marriage, she met Rodger in 2002. They dated and were married in October ‘04, making their home in New Orleans as well. Following Hurricane Katrina, they decided to build a home in Waveland, moving there in 2007. She is remembered as an organized problem-solver. A Christian by faith, she was a member at Main Street United Methodist Church in Bay St. Louis, where her and Rodger attended and served for many years. Though she had struggles with medical issues over the past twenty years or so, Ellen enjoyed life to the fullest. She loved nothing better than a good novel to read, or playing solitaire on her computer, both which she did quite often. But she could be drawn away from either at any time with some boiled shrimp. A loving sister, mother and devoted wife, Ellen will be forever missed by all whose life she touched. She was preceded by her parents, Edward & Betty Jane Sens, and two brothers, Paul Francis and Burnell Sens. Left to cherish her memories are: her loving husband for the past 17 years, Rodger McRee of Waveland; her son Ryan (Jaime) Sens of Worchester, MA; seven brothers: Patrick (Kathleen), Eddie (Ann), Paul (Rachel) and John Sens, all of New Orleans, with Stephen (Donna) Sens of Metairie, Thomas (Darlene) Sens of Mandeville, and Timothy Sens of Worchester, MA; and her sister-in-law Betsy Sens, also of New Orleans. Ellen leaves a legacy of three grandchildren: Lexi, Sadie and Owen, all of Worchester, with numerous nieces, nephews, extended family and friends. Her final wishes were to be cremated, which her family is honoring. A memorial service may be scheduled at a later date. Trinity Funeral Services is honored to serve the McRee family in their time of need, asking everyone to keep them in your thoughts and prayers during this difficult time.”

While information on the infection rate and severity of the Omicron variant is still unknown, Dobbs said the best protection at this point is the COVID-19 vaccinations and booster.

“Vaccines remain the best public health measure to protect people from COVID-19, slow the transmission rate, and reduce the likelihood of new variants emerging. COVID-19 vaccines are highly effective at preventing severe illness, hospitalizations, and death,” he said.

MSDH is also experiencing a minimal increase in the number of COVID patients in the hospital and a minimal increase of COVID patients in the ICU and on vents.
Vaccinations for all Mississippians 5 and older can be found from healthcare providers, FQHCs, independent and retail pharmacies, and county health departments. Appointments at county health departments can be scheduled online at covidvaccine.umc.edu, or by calling the COVID-19 hotline at 866-498-4948 from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. seven days a week.

Leadership: A Spiritual Discipline

By C. GERALD RICHARDSON, D. MIN.

C. Gerald Richardson, D. Min.

A recent “binge reading” of the work of Brene’ Brown has revealed a host of profound insights into how we think about leading others whether at work, at home, or in non-profit and helping communities. Brown is a professor of social work at The University of Houston. She is also a prolific author, and is a leader of seminars and workshops across the U.S. as well as in other parts of the world.

She brings to her work a healthy combination of research, common sense, and deep insight into the manner in which human beings interact with one another. Families, corporations, congregations, and even military institutions have benefited from her wisdom and teaching.

In her book, Dare to Lead Brown makes a simple, but transforming declaration. She says, “Clarity is kind”. Those two words are not often seen in the same sentence. Clarity can be a harsh concept.

It is not necessarily mean-spirited, but it can imply a lack of flexibility with little or no margin for error. The word “kind” on the other hand, is often seen as a “soft” concept. It usually carries implication of a gentle and tolerant nature.

Brown has captured something important when she combines the use of the two words into a simple sentence. Clarity is, in fact, an expression of kindness. One of the most frustrating and painful experiences that a person can have is to lack clarity in an area but still be expected to perform with competence. In that context the kindest thing a person might know could be the gift of clarity.

From a spiritual perspective recognizing that kindness in clarity is essential.

Leaders often employ the phrase, “Speak the truth in love” to guide people in the skill of human connection.

One of the most important truths that we can know is that speaking truth does not have to be harsh and punitive. Actually, it can be kind and redemptive.

An essential question for persons in positions of leadership, as well as in families, friendships and other important circumstances is “how might my communication with others be both clear and kind?”. Some of that challenge is answered in terms of tone and the spirit in which it is expressed. At other times it may be necessary to be more explicit in order to make sure that clarity is not interpreted as anger or challenge.

Human spirituality is not manifested simply in terms of being right.

It is also expressed in terms of relational generosity and a sincere desire to connect with those in our orbit whose lives are impacted by our presence.

Brene’ Brown is correct. Clarity is kind. It can have an impact for good. It can improve relationships, and it can make leaders more effective.

Meet Buster. Prior to coming into the shelter, this affable guy was reported to Animal Control after he was witnessed being a naughty boy. It seems he raided a few trash cans, chewed up a backpack, and gnawed on a neighbor's wagon. When his owner was contacted, he admitted that Buster "had no manners." Well, just for the record, DOGS DO NOT TRAIN THEMSELVES! Yes, this sweet boy may have caused some trouble in the neighborhood, but free roaming dogs are a lot like unsupervised, bored kids. Trouble awaits.

We have found Buster to be an affectionate, energetic, goofy dog, who loves people and just wants to have fun. He has the best time playing "keep away," chasing a ball, and playing with toys in our doggie exercise yard. A home with a fenced backyard is a must, as this 2 year old Labrador Retriever/Collie mix is an outdoorsy kind of fellow. We also encourage daily walks, not just for exercise, but because taking a walk together is a great bonding experience between a dog and his human companion. Buster is very treat motivated, which will be a great asset when training him in the basics.

Buster would be an awesome companion for a single person or couple, who intend to have him be a part of their activities. Joining a family with older children, especially if the kids are seeking a a BFF to play with and love, would also be a perfect fit for this handsome dude. If you are interested in meeting Buster, please come by during our visiting hours Mon-Fri 10am-3pm (Tues 12pm-3pm), or call our front desk at 228-466-4516 to schedule a meet-n-greet. Please bring your dog(s) and children along to ensure compatibility.

SCAM

ceived a call from someone claiming to be with the Adams County Sheriff’s Department. The caller claimed that a warrant had been issued for her arrest for failure to appear in court, and that she must immediately pay $6,000 via Apple Pay to avoid being taken to jail. When she questioned the legitimacy of the call, someone else called her to vouch for the claim, and the caller identification number falsely showed it to come from the Sheriff’s Office. When she said that she knew Judge Hudson, the caller claimed that there would be repercussions if she contacted the judge. The woman started trying to figure out how to come up with the money, but decided to contact Judge Hudson.

Judge Hudson reported the scam to the Adams County Sheriff’s Office and contacted local news media. The retired County Court judge works as Resident Jurist assisting Youth Courts around the state. He hasn’t issued arrest warrants in years.

“It’s just a scam to get money, and if they call enough people, somebody will buy into the scam,” Judge Hudson said. “They are preying on people’s fears. They had an answer to everything that she could say to them.”

Claiborne County authorities also reported a variation of the scam this week.

Claiborne County Chief Deputy Christy Sykes said that one man who received such a call gave the caller his credit card information after the caller demanding that he pay $1,400 to avoid being arrested. The man called the Sheriff’s Department and cancelled his credit card.

Sykes said, “That’s a dead giveaway (of a scam) if they are asking you for your debit or credit card number on the phone. I am trying to make everyone aware not to give personal information over the phone.”

Noxubee County Circuit Clerk Freda Phillips reported a variation of the telephone scam in September. The caller falsely claimed that a lawsuit was going to be filed or had been filed. “They were only giving them a few days to come up with the money. They were asking for a Social Security number and personal information....It was a scam.”

Hinds County Circuit Clerk Zack Wallace said it’s been a few years since a similar scam was reported to him. The pitch was that the recipient of the call had missed jury duty. The caller claimed to be with the Sheriff’s Office, and used names of high-ranking officers there. The caller demanded that the recipient purchase green dot cards, then called back to request the code numbers on those cards.

Wallace put a scam warning on the Circuit Clerk’s website: “Be Aware of Jury Scams” is highlighted in red.

If you receive a telephone call from someone claiming to be a government official and demanding money, your Social Security number or credit card information, hang up, independently look up phone contact information for local law enforcement and report the contact. Do not provide credit card or Social Security numbers on the phone if you did not initiate the phone contact.

Two more will be released soon.

SEA COAST ECHO

Pearl River Community College recognized 33 Practical Nursing graduates at a pinning ceremony held Thursday at the Ethel Holden Brownstone Center for the Arts. Students were from the night and weekend programs held on the Forrest County, Hancock, and Poplarville campuses.

“We are very proud of these students for what they have accomplished,” PRCC Vice President for Forrest County Center, Allied Health and Nursing Dr. Jana Causey said. “These students have worked hard through a very difficult and unprecedented time and they rose to the challenge!”

“Pearl River Community College is proud to put these students into the workforce to provide quality care and close the gap in the nursing shortage.”

One graduate from each campus was recognized with the Outstanding Student Award. For this graduating class, PRCC recognized Kayse Tower from Hancock Campus, Adina Whalum from Forrest County Campus, and Jenna Mark from Poplarville Campus.

Reginald Robinson was given the Practical Nursing Award of Excellence. This is given to a graduate who has excelled in every area of the program, including academic, lab, and clinical. They also demonstrate the Wildcat Way – Pride, Respect, Class and Character.

Robinson has a family, works full-time, and is a Sergeant in the United States Air Force. He drove a long distance each day to attend class; and was always positive, thoughtful, and inspiring.

BASKETBALL

The Bay High Tigers played in the Vancleave Tournament last week but there are no game details for the boys. The Lady Tigers (8-5) picked up two wins over Long Beach 44-31 and Cottage Hill Christian Academy 45-15 and dropped a game against the Sand Hill Wildcats 42-35.

The Hancock Hawks (8-2) dropped two games last week against Moss Point 49-37 and Brandon 57-49 to fall from the undefeated ranks. The Lady Hawks (7-3) also dropped two games to Moss Point 40-29 and Brandon 63-39.

OLA dropped a game with West Marion 62-31 on Friday evening.

The Pass Christian Pirates swept Picayune with the boys winning 48-32 and the girls 59-3. The Pirates also took two games from West Harrison with the boys winning 60-36 and the girls 52-8. The Pirates at 6-5 overall and the Lady Pirates are 8-2.

The Saint Stanislaus Rock-A-Chaws (2-8, 1-0) came so close to winning two games last week.

On Tuesday they dropped a nailbiter to Long Beach 35-34 as Long Beach scored with 54 seconds left and SSC was not able to get a shot off. Long Beach led 16-14 at halftime as there were 10 different lead changes in the game.

SSC head coach Daniel Grieves commented, "We only had 12 turnovers for the game tonight but the bad thing was we committed eight in a row. We also had 12 more shot attempts than Long Beach did. It may be a loss on the board but we are improving our game with more effort, gaining more possessions, creating more looks at the basket, and rebounding. I am proud to see that."

Byron Krohn and Paxton DeBardleben led SSC with nine points followed by Spencer Cornell with eight.

On Friday evening, SSC went on the road to West Marion and beat the Trojans 48-47 on Omar Tayara's game winner with 5.8 seconds left that put the Rocks 1-0 in the Division.

SOCCER

Bay High split a key series for the two teams on Friday evening. The Lady Pirates (4-4, 2-0) beat Bay High (6-4-1, 0-1) 1-0 on a goal by Avery Saulter in the first half.

In the boys game, the Tigers (6-4-1) topped Pass Christian 1-0 on a goal by Aiden Boudro with 20:17 left in the game. Earlier in the week, the Bay High boys beat Resurrection 2-0 and the girls won 8-0.

Hancock dropped games to Gulfport 3-0 and Petal 3-1 but turned around beat Resurrection 3-0 on Saturday. The Lady Hawks dropped their game with Gulfport 7-0.

Antique Maison is one of the largest antique shops in Hancock County, featuring more than 30 vendors.

BY MCKENZY NORTHINGTON

December's Hot Spots are sure to please the antique lover and readers of all ages.

ANTIQUÉ MAISON

After opening in 2007, Antique Maison has become one of the largest antique shops in Hancock county and an important part of Old Town's community. With a very spacious retail space and more than 30 vendors, there is a variety of collectibles and curiosities that makes Antique Maison a go-to for antique shoppers and visitors alike!

Ed and Sylvia Young opened Antique Maison after renovating the building that was destroyed during Hurricane Katrina. The couple developed a mall that rented booths to vendors who had lost their own antique malls to Katrina. By providing their customers a plethora of merchandise from a multitude of dealers, it didn't take long for the Antique Maison to become a success!

Be sure to set aside some extra time when visiting this location as you will find Antique Maison's labyrinth of booths are filled with many special finds! Owner, Sylvia Young, stated that there is "something for everyone" at her shop and the friendly folks at Antique Maison are extremely knowledgeable and always ready to assist you in finding that special something, whether shopping for something small or large!

Antique Maison will be one of the featured Hot Spot businesses for Second Saturday on December 11, 2021. Be sure to stop by the one and only Antique Maison this Second Saturday as they will be hosting a variety of specials for their holiday shoppers! Select vendor booths will be offering discounts on their products for savvy shoppers looking for wonderful finds at special prices. Shoppers can also enjoy live music by Myal Soul, an authentic Jamaican Reggae Band, from 4:00pm to 6:00pm!

BAY BOOKS

In the heart of Old Town, half a block up from the beach, you will find the quintessential small town book store, Bay Books.

In 2011, Jeremy Burke and his wife purchased the store with a vision to continue providing their community with a local, independent bookstore. Burke recalls, "Whenever we found out it was for sale, we knew we just had to go buy it because we didn't want our community or county without an independent bookstore."

Bay Books features an array of children's books, perfect for beginners.

Bay Books presents a real sense of community and personalization that you won't find at large chain and online bookstores. One of Burke's favorite parts about owning the shop is "being an asset to the community." He works to have a relationship with the local schools, and makes sure to carry the books that the students need.

Burke strives to have something nobody else has with an expansive children's section, local independent and self-published authors, and much much more!

With a variety of Christmas books and toys, along with a large selection of new and used books, holiday shoppers are destined to find the perfect gift at Bay Books! Should you have something particular in mind, they are happy to order anything you might want.

Burke's customer service and dedication is incredible. Make sure to visit his quaint shop this holiday season and find your next great read!

This Second Saturday, Bay Books will be hosting a plethora of promotions including a book signing from 11:30am to 1:00pm, live music from 4:00pm to 6:00pm, and with any purchase over $100, customers will receive a $10 gift card!
